

National Register: Listing It All

Structures and Historic Archaeology: What's On and In the Ground

Tuesday, January 24, 2012 – 8:30 to 4:30

Government Plaza located at 205 Government Street in downtown Mobile

Multipurpose Room on the first floor

Join staff of the National Park Service, National Register Program (NR), and the Alabama Historical Commission to learn how to prepare a National Register nomination with an emphasis on Historic Archaeology. End the afternoon learning how to navigate the waters of a Section 106 Review by the Alabama Historical Commission. The meeting is hosted by the Mobile Historic Development Commission. Local preservation commission staff and members, cultural resource consultants and the public are invited to attend.

Lisa Deline, National Register Reviewer, National Park Service, Washington, D.C.

How do you nominate properties to the National Register?

Learn about the National Register standards and how they apply to nominations for historic properties and districts. Deline will provide information on determining periods of significance, application of criteria, determining character defining features, determining boundaries, and placing the property within appropriate historic contexts. For commission members who review nominated properties or consultants who nominate properties, this is a chance to hear from the reviewer to find out what is needed in a successful nomination form.

Erika Seibert, National Register Reviewer, National Park Service, Washington, D.C.

How do you nominate historic archaeological resources to the National Register?

Learn how the National Register standards apply to historic archaeological resources. This session will provide information on National Register concerns for historic archaeological properties, determining periods of significance, level of investigations needed to confirm integrity and significance, and how to include historic archaeological features in larger historic district nominations and setting appropriate boundaries. Erika will also provide her impressions of the potential Africatown National Register district. She will explain the process from the reviewer's perspective, an insight that should not be missed.

Lee Anne Wofford, Alabama Historical Commission, Montgomery, AL

How do you apply the National Register criteria to architectural properties impacted by federal projects to comply with Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act?

Learn what the AHC requires to review Section 106 projects and how to avoid your project being returned for more information. This session will provide real world examples of common building types that cause the most problems for consultants (and AHC Reviewers!).
